

Bernard Lewis Fellowship

Year: 2014

To encourage high quality research in combustion by young scientists and engineers

Recipients:

Casey Allen, Marquette University, USA
Benedetta Franzelli, Stanford University, USA & EM2C-CNRS, France
Carmela Russo, Istituto di Ricerche sulla Combustione, Italy
Zhandong Wang, University of Science & Technology of China, China
Fujia Wu, Princeton University, USA

Carmela Russo, postdoc researcher at Istituto di Ricerche sulla Combustione, has been awarded the Bernard Lewis Fellowship of The Combustion Institute at the California Academy of Sciences during the 35th International Symposium on Combustion in San Francisco (August 3-9, 2014).

Carmela got her Ph.D. in Chemical Engineering at the Università degli Studi di Napoli "Federico II" and since the beginning of her Ph.D. activities she has worked on flame-formed carbon particulate characterization with Anna Ciajolo at CNR-Istituto di Ricerche sulla Combustione in Naples.

<https://www.combustioninstitute.org/pages/page101.php>